

GROUNDSMANSHIP TRAINING AND EDUCATION

Why Groundsmanship Training and Education is important:

Your team is the most valuable asset to your operation, therefore it is important to provide them with all the training and education necessary to do their work effectively. The more competent your team is, the more exceptional your green spaces can be.

Every successful facility requires a specialized maintenance approach. Groundsmanship Training and Education helps set the standard for your facility and provides your team with the knowledge and skills they need to deliver consistent results.

How Tom Irwin Advisors will help:

Our advisors customize the workshop around the needs of your team and the expectations for your facilities. We provide practical instruction to develop your team's technical knowledge and skills.

Part I of the workshop is an interactive discussion focusing on the importance of the specific skills and the knowledge needed to perform them at the highest level. Part II includes hands-on field demonstrations focused on technique and safety.

What you get during Groundsmanship Training and Education:

The workshops we offer include but are not limited to:

- Introduction to Groundsmanship
- Mowing
- Cultural Practices
- Game Day Preparation
- Field Usage and Rotation
- Infield Skin Management
- Spreader and Sprayer Calibration and Operation
- Plant Health
- Nutrition Management
- Field Worker Safety
- Irrigation and Drainage
- Environmental Stewardship

After the workshop is complete, your team will receive electronic copies of all supporting materials from the workshop.
